Back in 2018, Burger King announced that they would be selling their chicken nuggets for the very low price of 10 for just $1 (via QSR Magazine). Keeping this in consideration, does Burger King still have $1 chicken nuggets? 8 nuggets for $1 for a limited time at bk. For just $1, you can get eight nuggets and your dipping sauce of choice. Does Burger King have chicken nuggets on sale? Burger King is offering its chicken nuggets at a super-low price. Each order includes your choice of one dipping sauce, including BBQ, honey mustard, ranch, zesty, buffalo and sweet & sour. New York (CNN Business) Chicken nuggets have fallen victim to rising prices. Burger King's largest franchisee in the United States said Thursday that it will soon reduce the number of nuggets in meals from ten pieces to 8. Carrols Restaurant Group (TAST), which operates 14% of Burger Kings' roughly 7,000 US locations, told investors Thursday that the change will "partially offset inflation" without deterring customers because the price will remain the same. It's part of broader menu changes initiated by Carrols late last year to combat increasing food and labor costs. Carrols removed the Whopper from the discounted meals menu, which includes the 2 for $6 deal. The Burger King franchise also reduced the number of discounts it offers, and it hiked menu prices on some items. Carrols plans to hike some prices again this year. The changes follow many other fast food rivals, including Domino's. Last month, the pizza chain said it's cutting the number of wings in its $7.99 carry out offer from 10 pieces to just eight because of inflation. In addition to getting less, customers have been paying more. Little Caesars recently raised the price of its signature Hot-N-Ready pizza, Chipotle has hiked prices and as well as Starbucks and McDonald's. Customers have remained largely unfazed. Carrols said sales at its Burger King locations rose more than 7% during the fourth quarter. Similarly, McDonald's (MCD) recently said sales at its US restaurants open at least 13 months jumped 13.8%, last year, the largest annual increase since McDonald's started reporting comparable sales in 1993. In 2021, restaurant prices rose 6% according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. If you count your chicken nuggets on your next trip to Burger King and seem to come up short, it's not a mistake: they're deliberately putting fewer nuggets in each order. According to a recent earnings call, Carrols Restaurant Group has made the decision to reduce the number of chicken nuggets from 10 to eight, and it has also pulled the Whopper from the discount menu and dropped the burger from its Two for $6 and Two for $5 promotions. "As you may have recently read, the Burger King brand has about a dozen menu and promotional initiatives, some of which have already been implemented and some that will be implemented over the course of this year," Marketwatch quoted Carrols chief executive Daniel Accordino as stating during the call. "Recent actions in this regard from our franchisor[s] include lifting price caps on value menu items and reducing the number of nuggets [in] meals from 10 pieces to eight." Accordino suggested that these changes are a result of price hikes throughout the supply chain and its own increased labor costs. "Domestic food, paper producers and distributors supplying most of our commodities are dealing with labor constraints, along with higher fuel costs and are passing the increases on to us," he said. "As a result, commodity inflation overall was approximately 16 [percent] this past quarter compared to the prior year period." Carrols is the largest Burger King franchisor in the United States, operating 1,028 Burger King restaurants in 23 states. It's worth noting that — at least for now — its restaurants are the only ones that are pulling two nuggets out of each order. But the whole "The Whopper's No Longer on the Value Menu" thing affects all Burger Kings. The fast food chain's parent company made that announcement earlier in the month. In an interview with Reuters, Restaurant Brands International CEO Jose Cil said that the "iconic" sandwich had "been on this core discount platform for too long." Restaurant Brands International also suggested that the prices of other menu items could be increased this year, but did not elaborate as to which offerings could be impacted, or when. Burger King is not the only chain that has made changes to its value menu, or reduced its serving sizes, or both this year. Little Caesars has upped the price of its Hot-N-Ready pizzas for the first time ever, and Domino's has dropped two chicken wings from its $7.99 carryout deal in an attempt to keep the price point the same. Enjoy your favorite Value, Discount, and Dollar menu items while you can, because it seems inevitable that additional changes will be coming. Burger King Instagram Although you may call chicken nuggets the perfect lunch, you are, in my opinion, not dreaming big enough. Chicken nuggets can be a perfect snack, breakfast, dinner, or whatever you'd like...especially if they cost you less than $2. Luckily, you can get exactly that from Burger King right now. The chain (which just got a very chic new rebrand, in case you haven't seen!) is offering a very sweet—or, I guess spicy?—deal on its chicken nuggets right now, according to ChewBoom. Starting today, you can get a 10-piece chicken nugget from Burger King for $1.49. This includes both their classic chicken nuggets as well as the spicy kind, depending on how you're feeling that day. This deal, of course, also includes your choice of dipping sauce, which includes BBQ, Honey Mustard, Ranch, Zesty, Buffalo, and Sweet & Sour. I personally would pair Ranch with the spicy and, um, Ranch with the original too. But also you can't go wrong with Zesty! Oh, or Honey Mustard. Yum. Point is, no matter which sauce and nuggets combo you pick, they'll be delicious and cheap. These are the only two qualities that matter. If listening to all that nugget talk has made you hungry well, friend, me too! Let's go get some lunch, shall we? But we should probably get a move on because this deal will only be available at participating Burger King locations for a limited time. The good things always are, aren't they?!
